Bicycling across America....before heading off to college is a great way to see the country. Patrick Wolber, son of Patsy and Jack Wolber of Berkeley Street has headed to Tulane University in New Orleans. Patrick started his own business...mowing our lawns....trimming our hedges....and it was for that reason he decided to bicycle across the country. "Truth is, I took the trip because I biked to Hampton from Nashua with a friend when I was 15 to get away from landscaping that consumed my life. It felt so good to jump in the ocean and lay in the sand after biking so far (45 miles). I wondered what it would be like to bike all the way to the Pacific; I thought it must 10x cooler."

Patrick and his 2 friends started their cross-country trip on June 14th at Hampton Beach and 58 days later ended their journey in Florence, Oregon. They averaged 80 miles per day often traveling at night....sleeping and eating where ever they could. What a great summer story...for all of us. Best wishes to Patrick in his next "cooler" adventure.

Kathleen Ferrari, 42 Berkeley Street has just finished MacCullough's Women, the first book in a series, published as an eBook with a print version to follow later in the fall. As a huge fan of Women's fiction, Kathleen is creating a series of novels about the relationships formed between women who often appear to have little in common. MacCullough's Women is the first of a series of four novels to take place in fictional Lynton, NH. It is a story of a young widow's struggle to come to terms with her husband's sudden death while seeking answers to questions about his life. Kathleen has begun writing the second novel, Francesca's Foundlings.

Lisa Law...love the space you're in...

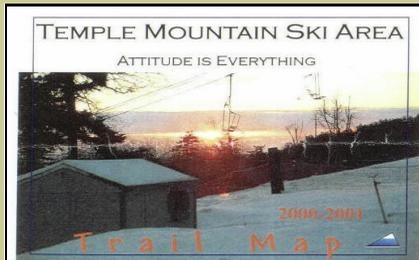

Sir Edward Coke in 1644 was quoted as saying, "a man's house is his castle, with the Latin translation "one's home is the safest refuge of all". If you believe your home should be your sanctuary, with rooms that offer peace and tranquility (who doesn't today?) then step into Lisa & Brian Law's home at 78 Concord Street for inspiration. I couldn't put my finger on it, like "charisma" either you have "IT" or not...and Lisa certainly has "IT". Her sense of balance is both calming and peaceful and transcends into her surroundings. Perhaps that sense of balance comes from her childhood years growing up on Temple Mountain. It was her grandparents, Charles and Lucie Beebe that started the ski area back in 1937. Her parent's, Mike & Sandy continued running the operation from the 1960's to the 1980's. Lisa says she would wake up in the morning in her PJ's, slip on a snow suit and ski down the mountain...now that is living!

Lisa's great grandfather, Charles Beebe Sr. was the founder of Nashua's Beebe Rubber Company, a manufacturer of natural & synthetic rubber soles for shoes. Many local Nashua residents worked at the company which operated from the 1930's until 2001 at 22 Marshall Street.

Lisa's family moved to Hollis, where her grandparent's lived when she was 16 and lived across the street from the Law's. While attending Wellesley College she began dating Brian and as they say, the rest is history. Brian and his family own Law Warehouses, one of NE's oldest and largest distribution centers located at 27 Airport Road in Nashua.

Today, Lisa has started her own business, Lisa Law Design Services featuring the art of Feng Shui. As I mentioned earlier, Lisa & Brian's home is a tranquil sanctuary, created by Lisa who graduated from the Western School of Feng Shui. Lisa says "it's made really positive changes in my life and I love how it empowers people to work toward more balance and harmony in their lives." We all could use more of that in today's hectic world. If you are interested in making your home, business or your garden into a sanctuary or looking to update your surroundings for a party or sale contact Lisa at 603-556-6109. Workshops are planned in the near future.

Ballet is a great way to stay in shape...learn the 5 steps of ballet...No Speedo's please just Tutu's....

Jeanne-Marie and Michael Maher of Columbia Ave. have travelled far and wide before deciding to come to Nashua's North End. They met and married in Seattle while enjoying similar interests such as rock climbing, skiing, hiking, bicycling, kayaking, rollerblading, bridge, theater and movies. Just one of these activities could fill one's spare time, but for Jeanne-Marie and Michael it appears the more the merrier. Before their Sleepless in Seattle days, Michael studied Math at Brown, then decided he needed more math (who doesn't) so he moved on for a Graduate Degree in Theoretical Math from the University of Wisconsin....(perhaps Congress should be contacting Michael for some help with those budget issues)... it was during this time, Jeanne-Marie earned her BS in Nursing from Penn then decided to move to Denver and Medical School. Her internship and residency brought her to Seattle and to Michael and those similar interests....what brought them to NH?Jobs....Jeanne Marie is the Medical Director for Home Health and Hospice in Merrimac and Michael works for OptumInsight a division of United Health....(Jeanne-Marie says he works there as a "geek".... using those enhanced Math skills....I say GENIUS... According to Michael, they arrived in the North End on the Mayflower (moving van) and found the perfect neighborhood. They love the tree-lined streets and friendly neighbors. I love their sense of humor...welcome to the Neighborhood!
